

Pre-submission self-assessment for authors

Manuscripts will be evaluated on the following review criteria. Considering how well your manuscript meets these criteria can help avoid surprises in the reviewing process.

Purpose and relevance Does the study have a clearly identified purpose and contribution? How relevant is the topic to the engineering education community? Is the significance of the contribution clearly described?
Perspectives from and/or relevance to the Global South Does the article present perspectives on the Global South, or focus on intercultural or international themes that are relevant and of interest to engineering educators in the Global South?
Literature How well is the study situated in existing literature? Are relevant prior works identified and analysed? Do the authors differentiate the purpose and approach of the study from similar or related works?
Context Are the environment and context of the research appropriately explained? Are the participants/data representative of the local/broader context? Does the description of the context provide sufficient detail to guide the reader on the applicability and rigour of the study?
Approach and methods Are the approach and methodology of the research appropriate to the purpose and context? Are the chosen methods sufficiently described and justified?
Findings and conclusions Are findings and conclusions discussed and critiqued? Are the findings coherently linked to the purpose of the study? Is the evidence presented sufficient to justify the findings and conclusions? How clearly do the authors articulate the importance and relevance of the findings?
Organisation, readability and style How well does the abstract summarise the research? Does the structure and organisation of the manuscript clearly and logically present the research? Is the language of an appropriate academic style, and are references and citations accurately captured? How appropriate are the text, tables, and illustrations - and the balance between the three - to the presentation?
Formatting and format Please double-check that your submission is in the format specified in the author guidelines and submission checklist.
